The joy of repainting

Some time last year I came back from a week off to a full voicemail box.

One of my least favorite things in life is talking on the phone. First, I have trouble hearing, so if, for example, you were to call me and say, "My daughter needs a kidney transplant," I might hear, "My dog lives in Sydney — as a tramp."

The conversation would generally deteriorate from there and I would end up looking like an idiot, which I try to avoid at all cost.

Second, I don't like answering the phone here at work because I never know who I might've offended with a story I've written, and the chance of hearing someone ask, "Do you have dog food for brains?" first thing in the morning is often a real possibility and not a fun one at that.

So, it was with extreme angst that I retrieved my messages, including two from "Paul the egg man."

Not that I have a problem with eggs, but his message said, "You recently wrote about repentance and I want to talk to you about it."

Oy, I thought. This could be bad.

I mean, I have much to repent over. Maybe Paul the egg man had caught me doing something I ought not be doing.

So, with fear and trembling I called Paul the egg man who proceeded to tell me a story:

"There was this guy who was hired to paint the church. He got half-way done and realized he was about to run out of paint, so he added some paint thinner.

"He got to the steeple and was still running out of paint, so he added more. When he finished, he looked at his work and said, 'That looks awful.'

"All of a sudden he heard a voice from heaven thundering, 'Repaint

— and thin no more!"

That's all Paul the egg man wanted to tell me, and I laughed with relief and delight.

Whew.

When someone begins a conversation with the word "repent," what's your first thought? If you're like me (and I know you are), your stomach knots and your face feels hot. You feel trapped and pray for the ground to open up and swallow you — better, that it would swallow the person using the R-word.

Nobody likes the word "repent," except those who understand it to be a blessing and a gift.

Through the prophet Isaiah, God told/tells his people, "In repentance and rest is your salvation; in quietness and trust is your strength" (Isaiah 30:15).

Another translation says, "Your salvation requires you to turn back to me and stop your silly efforts to save yourselves. Your strength will come from settling down in complete dependence on me — the very thing you've been unwilling to do" (The Message).

When you think of the word "repent," maybe you picture a scowling preacher waving a Bible and pointing an accusing finger.

But that's not the picture of God who says, "Repent."

That would be the God who sought out Adam and Eve after they sinned in the Garden of Eden, who did not destroy them but instead covered their shame with garments of sacrifice.

That would be Jesus, who, when faced with a woman caught in adultery whom the religious leaders, pointing their fingers, demanded that she be stoned to death, instead told her, "I do not condemn you; go, and sin no more" (John 8:11, my paraphrase).

That would also be the Savior uttering his final words before dying on the cross, "It is finished."

True repentance doesn't come by shaming or by force. Neither does it come by trying. Instead, it comes by resting, resting in what Christ has already done, resting in his perfect life, resting in his perfect death, resting in his perfect sacrifice for sin, yours and mine.

When we see that, our hearts are stirred toward repentance, a grateful response to God's mercy for sinful humanity.

True repentance should lead to relief, not condemnation, and a joyful eagerness to turn from sin. It comes from knowing we are at the same time deeply flawed yet dearly loved.

So, dear friends, beloved of the Lord, let us repaint — and thin no more!

He also raises Tennessee Walking Horses for his family's

Arnold files for family court judge

Sam Arnold filed his petition with the Kentucky Secretary of State seeking the position of Circuit Court Family Judge for the 18th Judicial District which includes Harrison, Pendleton, Nicholas and Robertson counties.

A family court judge has jurisdiction over divorces, child custody, visitation, adoption, domestic violence, child dependency, neglect and abuse proceedings.

"People appearing in family court are experiencing stressful and difficult times," Arnold said. "They are entitled to compassion and understanding. They want due process without protracted or unnecessary proceedings. They are anxious to have timely decisions and a resolution to their conflicts as many are in search of a new beginning or a healing family."

Since opening his law office in Cynthiana in 1972, Arnold's practice has consisted of representing clients throughout Central Kentucky before all courts, governmental agencies, departments and boards.

"Based upon my 42 years of practice of law, much of which has involved domestic disputes and related matters, I have the knowledge, understanding and ability to assist those individuals who are suffering from significant and profound problems. I believe my experience as a lawyer has prepared me to make wise decisions for the benefit of the parties, their families and their lawyers."

Arnold is the father of three children, Sam IV (Sheila), Russ (Crystal) and Anne (R.J. Ratliff). He has four grandchildren, Catron, Campbell, Keagon and John Russell. He is the son of Johnnie Arnold and the late Sam W. Arnold Jr.

"I am pleased with the practice, however, there has not been a day that passes for some years now that I have not considered becoming a family court judge. Now is the time. I ask the voters of Harrison, Pendleton, Nicholas and Robertson counties to support my candidacy on election day, May 20, 2014 by voting for me as your Family Court Judge."

Writer, teacher James Baker Hall named to Kentucky Writers Hall of Fame

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

The late James Baker Hall, a celebrated poet, photographer and professor living in Harrison County, was among seven writers inducted posthumously into the Kentucky Writers Hall of Fame on Thursday, Jan. 20.

The Carnegie Center for Literacy and Learning in Lexington, the hall of fame's organizer, hosted the annual event which has started the hall to recognize Kentucky's major contributors to the literary arts.

This is the second year of inductions to the hall of fame. Along with Hall, inductees included historian Thomas D. Clark; Rebecca Caudill, a children's author; Janice Holt Giles, an historic novelist; poet Etheridge Knight; Trappist monk Thomas Merton; and popular Kentucky novelist, teacher and writer Jesse Stuart.

To be eligible for the Kentucky Writers Hall of Fame, the writer must be deceased, have written works considered to be enduring in nature, and must be connected in some significant way to Kentucky.

Hall and his wife, novelist and poet Mary Ann Taylor-Hall, lived on the Harrison County side of Dividing Ridge Lane for over 35 years.

"Jim had three callings — writing, making photographs, and teaching. He practiced each of them as if it were the only one — with a lot of energy and joy. He would have been astonished and delighted — he probably would have laughed out loud — to find himself recognized in this way, in this company, for just doing what he loved to do," Taylor-Hall said.

James Baker Hall passed away in 2009, but in his wake he left an impressive legacy of writing and photography. He was also an immense influence on many of this nation's professional writers as head of the University of Kentucky's Creative Writing program, where he taught for over 30 years.

Hall likely appreciated the small touch of irony that went with his appointment to the UK creative writing program, particularly because it was as a student at the university that Hall's eyes were opened to the world of writing and literature.

In a 2001 interview with photographer Guy Mendes for KET, Hall said that he did not grow up with a yen to write or even read all that much. He was, instead, an all star multi-sports athlete at Morton Middle and Henry Clay High School in Lexington.

At UK, however, Hall told Mendes that his life changed. After reading T.S. Eliot's The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock in his college freshman year, he became an avid fan of literature and writing.

Not long afterward, Hall became one of an extraordinary class of young Kentucky writers that included Wendell Berry, Gurney Norman, and Ed McClanahan.

Encouraged by Robert Hazel, an editor for McGraw-Hill and a UK writing professor, these four writers all earned prestigious Stegner Writing Fellowships from Stanford University for four straight years.

"No school in the country had that many writing fellows at Stanford. No school in the country produced that many winners of the fellowship, and we had four right in a row," Hall said in the KET interview. "So at Stanford, they thought we had a real big writing program at UK. We didn't."

Some latter day critics and colleagues believe that a combination of bad luck and timing robbed Hall of potential commercial success with the publication of his first novel in 1963, Yates Paul, His Grand Flights, His Tootings.

"At the same time as his novel was released, a huge newspaper strike occurred. Not a single book reviewer ever saw or published anything about his book. So it was never given a public profile," Taylor-Hall explained.

Considered in some circles as a "lost classic," The University of Kentucky Press re-printed Hall's novel in 2002. While it earned favorable comments from book critics and from writer Larry McMurtry, who studied alongside Hall at Stanford.

However, most noted that it was very much a product of its time.

Hall began teaching creative writing at UK in 1973 and continued to produce acclaimed works of poetry and prose.

In certain circles, however, Hall is better known for his photography. In addition to publication of his works in several leading photography journals, Hall published several volumes of his work.

Among his notable photographic collections is A Spring-Fed Pond, a chronicle of his enduring friendships with five writers — his wife, fellow UK colleagues, and writer Bobbie Ann Mason, whom he met at the University of Connecticut where his wife was teaching and where Mason, Hall said, was just a young doctoral student from Kentucky with a bright future.

In addition to his regular publications, Hall became a long-time friend and associate of Larkspur Press in Monterey, KY. It was through Larkspur that Hall published his first collection of poetry, Getting it on up to the Brag.

Hall's works were published in numerous journals and magazines, including The New Yorker, The Paris Review, Poetry, The American Poetry Review, and The Kenyon Review. He received a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts in poetry and won both the Pushcart and O. Henry prizes.

In 2001, Gov. Paul Patton appointed Hall as Kentucky's Poet Laureate.

Throughout his life, Hall continued to push himself artistically. In photography, he successfully transitioned from darkroom work to digital imaging on Photoshop.

"He worked up to the last minute before his death," Taylor-Hall said. He left a few unfinished works behind, she said. Among them is a personal memoir which Taylor-Hall is endeavoring to complete along with her own writing, she said.

"He also has two novels which are in a state of incompleteness," she said.

Unfortunately, Hall is the only member of his esteemed class to meet one of the primary eligibility requirements for induction into the Hall of Fame, since they are awarded posthumously for the time being.

Last year's inductees, the hall of fame's inaugural year, included Harriette Arnow, William Wells Brown, Harry Caudill, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, James Still, and Robert Penn Warren.

Other who were nominated for 2014 but not inducted include James Lane Allen, Jim Wayne Miller, Guy Davenport, Alice Hegan Rice, Effie Waller Smith and Hunter S. Thompson.

Sleep disorders more than just snoring, say new physicians

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

Just because a person snores does not mean that they have sleep apnea, nor is it true that the condition only affects people who are overweight. Maria Pavez, MD, has been treating people with sleep disorders for years — enough to know that it can happen to anyone.

Pavez and Jalil Shojaei, MD, partners in the Lexington Neurosciences Center, are new physicians in the Harrison Memorial Hospital Consulting Staff. They came aboard with HMH late last year. Both doctors are board certified in neurology and sleep medicine and have been in practice in Kentucky for well over a decade each.

Pavez said that continuing into sleep medicine after her neurology residency at the University of Kentucky was one of the best decisions she ever made.

"I have found this area of medicine to be very rewarding. At the time I didn't realize how much sleep disorders were impacting many people's health," Pavez said.

Apnea is only the most common of the disorders that can have a negative impact on the normal patterns of a person's sleep. While chronic sleeplessness may not be a disease in the normal sense that people view illness, it is a condition that can have a serious impact on a person's health and ability to function.

As a graphic illustration of the importance of sleep in a daily routine, Pavez points out that sleep deprivation is, sadly, a common form of torture.

"Our brains must go through several stages for sleep to be restorative. When we reach the level of deep sleep, it allows the brain to rest. Sleep disorders, like apnea, insomnia, restless leg syndrome or periodic limb movement disorder interrupt the natural process of sleeping. They prevent people from reaching important stages of deep sleep and, left untreated, can have a negative impact," Pavez said.

The consequences of not getting a good night's rest are more than just waking up tired and being "slow" all day. In the short term, she said, sufferers may experience morning headaches which could indicate a lack of oxygen feeding the brain.

"If a person's airway is restricted or blocked for short durations while they are sleeping, it can result in rising levels of carbon dioxide. It's like being partially suffocated," Pavez said.

Her patients also complain of memory and learning difficulties which can have a long term affect on job performance, she said.

"Therefore, a lack of a proper sleep has personal economic consequences." In her years as a sleep medicine specialist, Pavez has seen the damage that sleep apnea, the most common of sleep disorders, can have on patients. She has encountered patients who suffer from high blood pressure and heart conditions made worse because their sleep apnea has gone undiagnosed for years or even decades.

There are successful treatments for nearly every form of sleep disorder, but people need to be aware of the symptoms.

Not every person who snores suffers from sleep apnea, Pavez said. It's not snoring that's the problem. It is the moments when a person does not breathe at all. Those moments can last five to 10 seconds and can re-occur frequently - as much as 30 times in a night.

A symptom of sleep apnea that people find surprising is the elevated energy they feel when they wake up suddenly. People who characterize themselves as "light sleepers" often experience this tell-tale warning sign.

"The body's natural defense when it senses restricted air flow to the brain is to increase metabolism by releasing adrenaline or epinephrine into the body. The sleeper gets a slight jolt to wake up," Pavez said. "This jolt makes it more difficult for a person to get back to sleep after they are awakened."

Persons who are overweight are at greater risk for developing sleep apnea, but Pavez said that she has treated adults for the disorder who are thin and in relatively good health. They come in complaining of being constantly tired and discover that they have had sleep apnea for years.

Her partner, Dr. Shojaei, specializes in the treatment of apnea and other sleep disorders in children.

Interestingly, a common symptom of sleep disorders in children is hyperactivity.

"Children with a sleep disorder may be misdiagnosed as ADD or ADHD. Before accepting that diagnosis, it is a good idea to make sure the child is getting enough sleep during the night," Pavez said.

Treatment for sleep disorders does not have to involve expensive equipment. The condition can be improved with simple changes in lifestyle or routine.

That is why people who experience a sense of restlessness or chronic fatigue on a regular basis should take advantage of having a sleep lab available at the local hospital.

For those uncomfortable with the idea of spending the evening at the hospital —though, Pavez said, the rooms designated for the sleep lab are extremely comfortable with TempurPedic mattresses — patients can opt for going through a sleep study in the comfort of their own home.

In most cases, people will find they do not have a disorder. For those who do, there are a number of treatment options available depending on the severity of the problem.

The major convenience is having this specialty available locally in Cynthiana, Pavez said.

"Dr. Shojaei and I are glad to be able to provide sleep medicine services to this area. HMH has done a lot of good work to provide an excellent area for sleep medicine studies. Their patients don't have to go to much trouble to avail themselves of our services," Pavez said.

USDA hardiness zones are hot and cold

Cold Hardiness
The USDA Hardiness Zone Map has long been a guideline for cold hardiness of plants; about every ten years it is revised in order to provide a bit more detail in our changing climate. The most recent map was revised in January of 2013 and is based on temperature information from 1976 through 2005. Climate researchers collected temperatures from over 4,600 weather stations across the United States. They take the average coldest temperature of a location to come up with an “average annual extreme temperature” to determine an area’s hardiness zone. Digitally created maps have high resolution and can easily show the microclimates that typically pop up around cities. This is the reason that some of us around Louisville are in Zone 7a (to the west of downtown averages 0° to 5°); 6a (Simpsonville where I live has an average extreme of -10° to 15°); and others are in Zone 6b (St. Matthews has a slight edge with an average extreme of 15° to 0°)

The USDA hardiness map has also added four more zones that designate areas that experience average annual minimum temperatures of 50°, 60°, 70° or 80° F, respectively. Each Zone has a trendy color attached to it, too.

Our area is various shades of green. The American Horticultural Society’s makes it very easy for us to access our exact zone, visit www.ahs.org and scroll down to navigate to “Gardening Maps.” You can plug in your zip code and interactive GIS –based site will tell you if you are still the old Zone 6 (which is now 6a or 6b); or if you have graduated to the “warmer” Zone 7. With that said don’t worry about changing anything you do in the garden. If anything, take more risks! For most of us we remain in Zone 6, those of us closer to the city may be included in Zone 7 due to a heat-island effect.

Heat Zones

In addition to mapping the Plant Hardiness Zones we have a map to help with how heat affects the health of our plants. If you have ever tried to grow delphinium in the garden you know that it is not the cold hardiness that thwarts success, instead it is the heat and humidity that makes them melt by mid-June.

In 1997 The USDA’s Plant Heat Zone map was introduced. The heat map divides the United States into 12 different heat zones. They compiled temperature data from 1974 through 1995 from the National Climatic Data Center and established zones based on the average number of days a location experienced 86 ° Fahrenheit or above. Heat Zone 1 has less the 1 day above 86° F and Zone 12 has 210 or more days at or above 86° F. Why 86° degrees? Well, at 86° F plants begin to show heat stress. Leaves may wilt, roots may stop growing, flowers drop, bud initiation ceases or heat recovery overnight doesn’t occur because temperatures are too high.

In an effort to establish guidelines for heat tolerance the Plant Heat Zone map allows us to be better informed about the plants we buy and what realistic expectations about their summer performance should be. Some nurseries are already including heat hardiness information but the usage on tags is primarily only seen with larger wholesale plant producers.

It seems sort of confusing and it may take a while to get used to but here’s how to decipher the four-code system for heat. There are two sets of numbers, for example, (6-9, 9-1). The first set of numbers recognizes that the plant is cold hardy in zones 6, 7, 8 and 9; the second set of numbers indicates that the plant has heat tolerance from zones 9 down to the coolest of zone 1. Just be sure that zone 6 or zone 7 is included in the number spread of both cold and heat ranges and the plant is approved for both heat and cold hardiness in Kentuckiana!

Shining the bright lights back on ourselves

Oops!

My wife and I went for a nice drive one evening. We were trying to locate a trail with the plans of hiking on it one day. We got a late start and ended up driving out in the middle of nowhere, in what was almost total darkness to find the trail.

We found the trail and commented on how we had enjoyed the drive. As we were coming back closer to town, something unusual and irritating kept happening. As we would encounter other vehicles, their headlights would almost blind me.

On one curve I had a vehicle come around the curve with its bright lights on and I couldn't see the road for a couple seconds.

I told my wife, "That could make someone have a wreck."

I had a couple more instances of bright lights facing me, then I looked down at my dash.

Oops!

You guessed it. I had a little blue light shining on my dash indicating that I had my bright lights on. I had been doing the very thing that I was so angry about the other people doing.

Aren't we funny that way. We see the faults in others, but rarely see them in ourselves.

After I thought about it, I realized that I probably actually caused the other vehicles to have their brights on. They probably put them on in reaction to or in retaliation to mine being on.

CALVARY ASSEMBLY OF GOD

If we find people around us acting grouchy and defensive, it may be because we are being critical or impatient ourselves.

The next day I went to visit someone in the hospital. I had been told years ago to be sure that I washed my hands as I left the hospital in case I had picked up germs or viruses.

As I was about to enter the hospital I noticed a waterless sanitizing soap dispenser. It was there to wash your hands as you go in.

I thought that was odd because I didn't really need it until I was leaving. Then it dawned on me. They didn't want me to bring germs "into" the hospital.

Isn't that ironic that we usually think of the problem being someone else.

So when others irritate you remember that you may do the same things or you may be causing their actions.

Another thing to remember is that you may not have the same faults as them, but probably just have different ones that are just as glaring. You just don't see them as well.

Scripture

Luke 6:36 says, "Therefore be merciful, just as your Father also is merciful." Luke 6:41 says, "And why do you look at the speck in your brother's eye, but do not perceive the plank in your own eye?"

Homecoming a success as Fillies, Breds sweep Pendleton Co.

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

Morgan Eden is the queen, Wyatt Whitson is the king and the Harrison County High School Homecoming Night was a great success with two victories over Pendleton County Friday night.

In addition to the game, the cheerleaders performed the routine which they will do in Orlando in the national competition, the National Anthem was performed by a brass quartet from the Harrison County High School band while the Air Force Junior ROTC carried the colors and a percussion trio performed at the half of the boys' game.

This was a busy night on the Hilltop with all of this and a Fillies softball-sponsored chili supper and the Fillies and Thorobreds both won their games.

Before the Fillies game began, senior center Jordan Doram was presented the game ball from the Campbell County game to honor her for becoming the sixth Fillies player to score 2,000 career points.

The Fillies opened the games, but this night without the slow start that has been a traditional problem as of late.

The Fillies worked the ball into Jordan Doram successfully in the opening period and played a tough defense that led to 28 percent shooting from the field for the Lady Cats.

Doram scored nine first-quarter points as Harrison County sprinted out to a 16-7 lead by the end of the first quarter.

Harrison County's defense became even more aggressive in the second period as the under-manned Pendleton County squad managed to hit only two of 13 shots for the period for a 14 percent output in the first half.

If not for a break out of turnovers for the Fillies, their lead would have been greater than the 27-14 advantage that they carried into the locker room at the half.

The second half was much like the first as the Fillies continued to out-shoot, out-rebound and play better defense than Pendleton County.

Harrison County stretched the third quarter lead out to 15 points and added a six-point advantage in the fourth period to finish the game with the final 53 to 32.

The game was totally dominated by the Fillies as they finished with a

Woodford County edges Breds on Boggess' late shot

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

Harrison County raced out to an early 16-point lead last Wednesday night at Woodford County only to see the Yellowjackets rally for a last second 54-to-52 victory.

Turnovers were the issue on this night as Harrison County committed 16 while the home standing Yellowjackets made only six.

The Thorobreds were playing the second game in a row without senior forward Dillon Pulliam, who is out with a badly sprained ankle.

Pulliam was joined on the sideline for Wednesday's game by sophomore Brock Jenkins and junior Jordan Kenney who were also out with injuries.

Harrison County scored at will against the starters of Woodford County in the beginning of the game as the Yellowjacket's man-to-man defense was very ineffective.

The coach of Woodford County, Scott Hundley, was so disappointed in his starters that in the second period he replaced them with reserves that played a box-and-one defense on junior Trenton Thompson.

Thompson had six points and six rebounds in the first quarter and Hundley seemed convinced that if his team stopped Thompson things would go better for the Jackets.

The Woodford County plan worked to some degree as Harrison County's output for the second quarter was only half of the first period. The lead was cut at one time to 24 to 16 late in the second stanza.

Thompson was able to hit two three pointers near the end of the half and the Thorobreds went to the half-time break with a 30-to-19 lead over Woodford County.

Mason Ritchie scored on a put back to start the second half ballooning the Thorobreds' lead to 32 to 19.

Woodford County then went on a 10-point run to cut the lead to three with the Breds back on their heels and playing with more hesitation.

The score bounced back and forth between Harrison County leading from three to one point with the period ending with the Thorobreds holding a 44-to-43 advantage.

Senior guard Samuel Souers hit a three pointer with six minutes plus to play in the game to give Woodford County its first lead of the contest, 46 to 44.

Harrison County's D.J. Jenkins hit a lay up to tie the score but Woodford County responded with two baskets

Lady Crusaders press Fillies in Saturday loss

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

Poor free throw shooting and the inability to handle St. Henry's press sent the Harrison County Fillies to their 12th loss against nine wins Saturday afternoon.

St. Henry pressed Harrison County from the onset of the contest with a full court effort that saw the Fillies not able to get the ball past the mid stripe at times.

The Fillies committed 29 turnovers in the game most caused by the Lady Crusader pressure.

If the turnovers were not frustration enough, Harrison County was also nine of 23 from the free throw line for the game.

Harrison County's problems could not have come at a better time for St. Henry as the 9th Region team had a very poor shooting effort. The game stats had the Lady Crusaders shooting a cool 17 of 51 from the field for the less than admirable 33.3 percent.

Despite all of the turnover problems, the Fillies kept the game close until the midway point of the second quarter.

With five minutes to play in the half, St. Henry led by two points at 16 to 14 before the Tanner Wells tries to move his Scott County opponent to a better position last week in wrestling action.

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

After defeating both Dunbar and Scott County in dual meets, the Harrison County wrestlers finished second in a 13-team meet at Western Hills on Saturday.

Dunbar won only two of 14 matches as the Breds soundly defeated their Lexington opponent 60 to 12.

The same was true for Scott County as the Cardinals only won two events of 13 as the Harrison County squad won on four pins, a tech fall and three major decisions en route to a 53 to 12 win.

The major tournament, sponsored by Western Hills, found 13 schools participating in the Saturday event.

Franklin County won by a 174.5 to 158.5 margin over the Thorobreds, who finished second.

The order of finish for the rest was Male, Bates Creek, Dixie Heights, Iroquois, Newport, Boone County, Madison Southern, Walton Verona, Jeffersontown, Bryan Station, and the host school, Western Hills.

Overall, it was a disappointment because I wanted first to see a good game and second for the Broncos to win. But, as the Cub's fans will always tell you, we can wait until next year. Then the Steelers should be back in their rightful place in the Super Bowl.

46-to-18 rebounding edge led by 22 boards from Doram.

Doram had another double double for the night as she scored 26 points to go along with the 22 rebounds.

Madison Philpot was also in double figures as she scored 11 points.

“This was our best job of the year controlling the game tempo from start to finish,” said Coach Kim Furnish. “We were able to get the ball to Jordan from the start, which is what we need to do especially against an undermanned team like Pendleton County is this year.”

The Fillies improved to 9-11 with the win while Pendleton County falls to 1-11.

The Thorobreds welcomed back Dillon Pulliam from a two-game absence with a sprained ankle. The senior forward responded with a 22-point effort to lead the Thorobreds over the Pendleton County Wildcats, 70-53.

The game started out even as senior guard Lance Jones of Pendleton County had a career night beginning with three of five three pointers in the first stanza as he scored 11 of the Wildcats’ 16 first-period points.

Harrison County, behind junior guard D.J. Jenkins and senior center Mason Ritchie, matched the Wildcats 16-point effort as they combined for 10 points.

The Thorobreds lit up the scoreboard for 19 second-quarter points while holding Pendleton County to seven as they established dominance in the game.

The most dominant area was the boards as the Thorobreds grabbed 11 rebounds to two for the Wildcats in the second period.

After the halftime intermission, the Thorobreds really warmed up from the floor hitting 10 of 17 field goal tries as they expanded the lead to 60 to 33 by the third quarter’s end.

Junior Trenton Thompson had 10 points in the period while Pulliam added nine.

Coach Larry Kendall played his reserves the complete fourth quarter and they had some turnover issues as they committed seven of the 17 miscues that the Thorobreds recorded for the night.

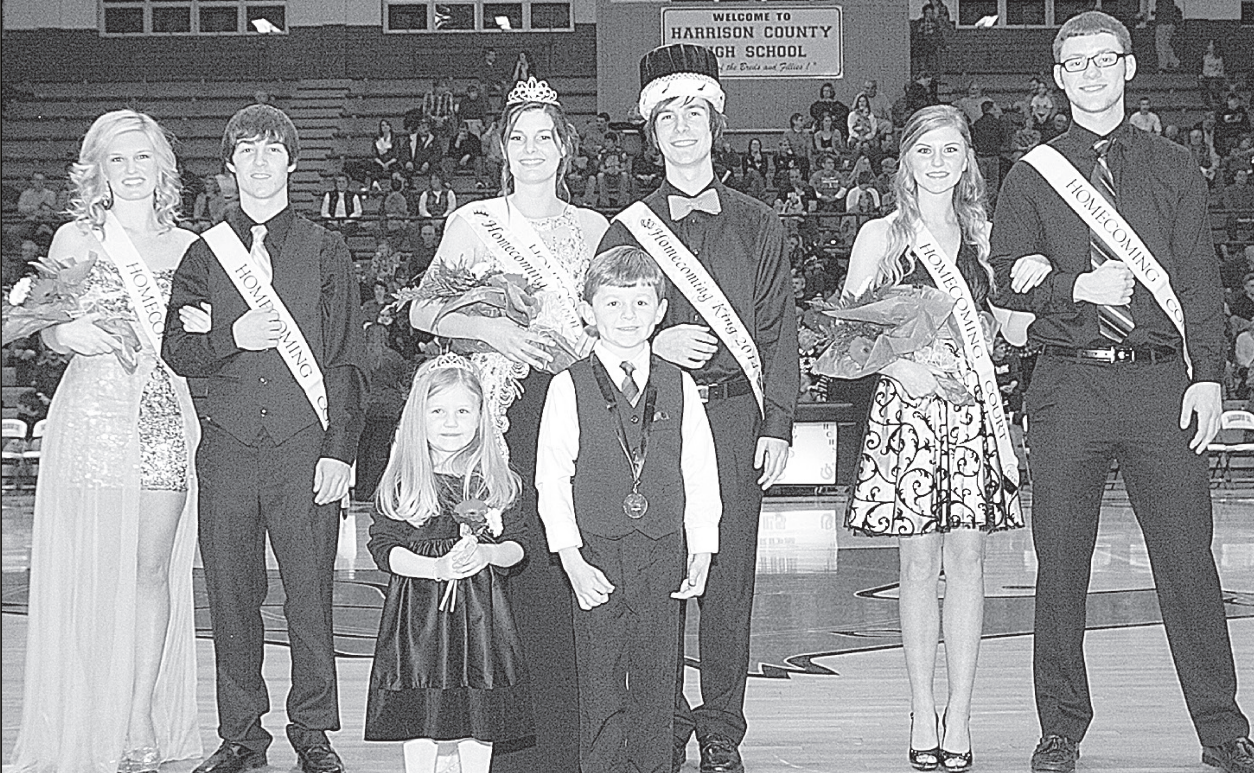

The Pendleton County starters outscored the reserves by a 20-to-12 margin for the final 70 to 53 total.

Pulliam scored four three pointers for the night which ties him for fourth place all time in the Harrison County record books with Clay Muntz. His 151 passed Johnny Mac Dawson, who scored on 149 three pointers in his career.

The Thorobreds had three people in double figures with Pulliam’s 22 points, Thompson’s 14 and Jenkins who scored 13. Ritchie and Grant Carr were the leading rebounders with six each.

Jones’ 20 points and sophomore Michael Antrobus, who added 10 points, were the only Wildcat in double figures.

The win improved the Thorobreds’ record to 10-12 while Pendleton County falls to 6-13.

Fillies

home team went on an extended run of 17 to two, which progressed into the third period. This run gave the Lady Crusaders a 33-to-16 advantage.

St. Henry's shooting went cold in the second half and the Fillies worked hard to chip away at the lead.

Seventh grade point guard Madison Kellione had seven of her nine points in the second half as she and senior Jordan Doram combined for 16 of the Fillies' 23 second-half points.

Harrison County cut the lead to 46 to 37 following a Doram basket with one minute and a half left in the game, but that was as close as the Fillies could get to the Lady Crusaders.

St. Henry made enough of its free throws to hold off Harrison County for the 15th win of the year against five losses for St. Henry.

Other than Doram and Kellione, freshman Taylor Reffett and junior Whitney Gray had a good afternoon.

Reffett scored seven points before fouling out and Gray grabbed five rebounds and made some big defensive plays.

Doram led the Fillies with 16 points and eight rebounds. The points on Saturday gave Doram 2,061 for her career, which puts her in fifth place all time at Harrison County as she surpassed Mary Custard-Austin who scored 2,057 points in her career. Custard-Austin played for the Fillies between 1982 and 1986.

for a 52-to-48 lead with two minutes to play.

Thompson scored his only second half basket to cut the lead to two and then following a rare Woodford County miscue, Jenkins hit a pair of free throws to tie the game with 39 seconds left.

The Yellowjackets held the ball until 12 seconds to play when Hundley called time to set up the final play.

With just a little over two seconds to play, Boggess made a contested shot in the middle to give Woodford County the lead.

Harrison County called a time out, advanced the ball to the mid-court line and called another time out giving them the ball with 1.4 seconds to play.

The inbounds pass went to sophomore Zack Pulliam who shot a 25-foot shot that bounced off the rim and the Yellowjackets pulled out the come-from-behind victory.

Harrison County out shot Woodford County 54 percent to 42 percent and out rebounded the host team by a 28-to-17 margin but they just could not overcome the turnovers.

Thompson led the Breds with 22 points and 11 rebounds while Jenkins scored 15 points.

HARRISON COUNTY, KENTUCKY
ORDINANCE NO. 2013-278

AN ORDINANCE OF THE HARRISON COUNTY FISCAL COURT, HARRISON COUNTY, KENTUCKY AMENDING THE TEXT OF SECTION 12.1 OF THE ZONING ORDINANCE RELATING TO DESIGNS AND LAYOUT OF OFF-STREET LOADING AND/OR UNLOADING AREAS.

WHEREAS, the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning and Zoning Commission held a public hearing on October 21, 2013 for the purpose of considering text amendments which had been initiated by the Planning and Zoning Commission with said text amendments relating to designs and layout of off-street loading and/or unloading areas, and

WHEREAS, the Planning and Zoning Commission has forwarded the text of the amendments to the Harrison Fiscal Court with a recommendation for approval, and

WHEREAS, the Harrison Fiscal Court has fully considered the proposed text amendments and the Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and recommendation of the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning and Zoning Commission and desires to adopt the recommended text amendments,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE HARRISON FISCAL COURT, HARRISON COUNTY, KENTUCKY AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1:

Sections 12.1 of the zoning ordinance of the Harrison Fiscal Court relating to designs and layout of off-street loading and/or unloading areas is hereby amended to read as follows:

SECTION 12.1 DESIGNS AND LAYOUT OF OFF-STREET LOADING AND/OR UNLOADING AREAS:

A. Size of Off-Street Loading and/or Unloading Space – Each off-street loading and/or unloading space shall be a least fourteen (14) feet in width and at least sixty (60) feet in length, exclusive of aisle and maneuvering spaces and shall have a vertical clearance of at least fifteen (15) feet; provided, however, that when it is demonstrated that a particular loading and/or unloading space will be used by shorter trucks, as provided for in Section 12.0, A, the zoning administrator may reduce the minimum length to not less than thirty-five (35) feet.

B. Access – Each required off-street loading and/or unloading space shall be designed with direct access via an approved access drive, to a deeded right-of-way, which offers efficient ingress, egress, and safety for trucks. Access drives or aisles shall be laid out with a width of a least twelve (12) feet for one-way circulation and at least twenty-two (22) feet for two-way circulation with intersection radii not to be less than fifty (50) feet. Off-street loading and/or unloading space shall be so designed and constructed so that all maneuvering for loading and/or unloading can take place entirely within the property lines of the premises being served. Such off-street loading and/or unloading space shall be so located as not to hinder the free movement of pedestrians and vehicles over a sidewalk or street.

C. Other Design Features – Docks are to be designed to facilitate efficient loading and/or unloading. Platform heights should be 44 inches for light pickup and delivery trucks and 48-52 inches for heavy trucks and trailers. The dock area should be a least twice the total body floor area of the largest number of trucks that can be docked at one time. Minimum dock overhead clearance (including pipes, lights, etc.) should be twelve (12) feet.

D. Paving of Off-Street Loading and/or Unloading Areas – All off-street loading and/or unloading areas, including spaces, maneuvering, storage areas for truck parking and any access drives used for trucks, shall be paved with asphalt concrete or portland cement concrete and shall be designed and constructed in accordance with the standards adopted by the legislative body (see Appendix A). Activities conducted under the Agricultural zone and Rural Business zone may use gravel surfaced parking areas.

E. Lighting – Any lighting used to illuminate off-street loading and/or unloading areas shall not glare upon any right-of-way or adjacent property.

F. Screening and Landscaping – All loading and/or unloading areas including storage of parked trucks, shall be effectively screened on each side adjoining or fronting on any property situated in a residential zone or fronting on a public street as regulated by Section 9.17; Screening Area, of this ordinance. Ground cover shrubs and trees shall be located and maintained so as to not interfere with vehicular and pedestrian traffic on the property or with sight distance clearance at entrances and exits.

SECTION 2: This Ordinance shall become effective upon approval, passage and publication as required by law.

Indoor track season begins with meet at Nutter Fieldhouse

Saturday saw the beginning of the indoor track season with the Wildcat Track Classic at the University of Kentucky's Nutter Fieldhouse. The weather, as we all know, has not been conducive for outdoor training so the Fillies and Thorobreds have been concentrating on hurdles indoors. The results Saturday were evidence of that.

Kassidy Cook ran the 60M hurdles in one 100th of a second off Katelyn Gray's record as she finished third in 09.74. Caylin Mattox was fifth in 10.10; and Haley Carr was 14th in 10.51.

The boys results were also good for the first time out as Colton Burus was 16th in 09.43 and Derrick Nunnelley was 21st in 09.63 in stiff competition.

Cook also participated in the long jump where she finished seventh with a leap of 15-feet-00.75.

"We are proud of how our athletes competed," said Coach Danny Simpson. "We performed very well considering our preparation time has been very limited."

The season continues with meets in Mason County on the next three Saturdays.

LVC to organize co-ed basketball team

Right here in the middle of the cold-est winter in a long, long time, the college on the hill has put together a co-ed basketball opportunity for both the men and women students. The teams, called the Hilltop Blues, One and Two, will play a intramural schedule at the city hall gym in Cynthiana.
